The Indians of the United States, According to the reports for 1855 of the Com-nissioner of Indian Affairs, the Indian popula-tion of the United States, exclusive of a few in several of the States who have lost-their tribal character, or analgameted with the whites of blacks, may be estimated at from $20,000 souls. The tribes are ninety-nine in member. In 1554, the payments of money by the government to the various tribes amounted to $50,46,327,98. During the last ten years, expenditures have been made by certain societies, for the educational and religious advancement of the Indians, as follows: By the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions (Reston) several of the States who have lost their triba the Indians, as follows: By the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions, (Boston) $4.02,974; by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, (New York,) $327,193,53; by the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, (New York,) $107,230; by the American Indian Mission Association (Louisville,) $104,412,15; by the Catholic Mission, (St. Louis,) $87,319,05. During the same period the Methodist Episcopal Church South has expended for the same purposes about $238,000.—The total outlay for the Carrettanization and cirilization of the Indians, within the last ten years, amounts is more than $2,150,000.

FRUIT.—The Orange and Lemon trade of our city is no mean one, and thus far during the present scason, has been larger than at any time for the last fifteen years. It is estimated that fifty cargoes of fruits will arrive this season, of which twenty-five have already been received. From Havana about 6,000,000 oranges have been imported into this port, 2,000,000 of which came in steamers and the balance in sailing craft. The season for Havana fruit is now about closing, the total importations being estimated at $100,000 in value. From the Mediterranean, the supply of finit is just commencing to arrive, there being eight or nine cargoes already in market unsold and boxes were disposed of a day, or two since at the low rate of 45 cents. The total importations from the Mediterranean, it is catimated, will amount to 200,600 boxes, mostly from Messina and Palermo.—About one-third of this quantity is lemons. The total valuation of this cargo, exceed $500,000. A large deduction has to be made for losses from decay. Supplies of fruit from the Mediterranean continue until about the time the domestic fruit time commences in the Fall; but it is finest about the 1st 106 May, when the Havanah fruit fails.—N. Y. The Theatrical wardrobe of the Chinese company who came to New York some three years since, but who have since been reduced to beggary, never even redeeming their wardrobe from its pledge for their passage, was sold at auction on Thursday. Among the articles sold were elegant gold emibroidered and satin robes, embroidered scarfs with mirrors, aprons, vesus pantaloons, &c. The one or two exceptions all brought less than $20

VENUTURE.—A letter from Naples states that Venuture at present excites an incredible degree of attention. A new crater has been opened and the summit of the principal cone has been flattened and otherwise materially changed in form. Excursions to the upper part of the mountain are fraught with danger. Everything, in short, announces that some very important change in the volcano is about to take place, either an erunsion or a collapse. It would be extraordinary, continues the letter, if one of those singular events recorded of angiest volcanoes should take place—if Venuvius should fall under its own weight and a lake take its place, as once happened to the mountains of Fursaro and of Agnano!

The London Times was established in 1786 by John Walter, and, on his death in 1887, inherited by his son John, at the present a member of Parliament. The establishment is valued at 2750,000 sterling, or $8,750,000. Its editor-inchief receives an annual salary of £5,000, and its Paris correspondent 60,000 frances per annum.

I have seldom thought it necessary to correct personal misstatements affecting myself alone; but as this implicates others, and those members of the House of Representatives, I beg your permission to say that it has no foundation whatever in truth.

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 23, 1855. The present city of Alexandria contains about 200,000 inhabitants, and perhaps there is no city in the world that has such a mixture of races. See first page for miscellaneous reading They are composed of races from all parts of the Barbary States-Egyptians, Turks, Albanians, Syrians, Greeks, Jews, Copts, Armenians, and side when he would sheer to the right, and then mixed with alluvial soil, and consequently the streets are always dry. In what is called the Frank quarter, there is a large public square, around which are located some very fine public self by another Railroad mob yesterday. We buildings as well as private residences. All the hest horels are located on this park, as like. wise may be seen the flag-staffs of the consulfrom different countries, rising from the summits ) There is a lull in the political excitement at lufted with well-selected assortments of French, English and Eastern goods, the offices of the Oriental and Transit Steam Company, and other lines of steamboars, and the post office. There are a few European streets, but the balance are made up of narrow, dirty streets, like those of Constantinople and Smyrna. Though or English, and sometimes a well dressed Mussuloan with turban and flowing robes, which denote wealth and rank, yet the main body of moving masses are natives of the country of mixed races as before noticed. Although in the above named cities the thousands that clog up the streets look poor enough, many of them, yet they seem very well clothed and free from filth. But here it is the reverse; they are not only very thinly and miserably clad, but their persons look so loathsome and filthy that the eye turns away with louthing and diagnat. Whole streets are filled with men, women and children sitting down in the dist, some of them half naked, each one having a little stock of course bread, a few oranges, or a half dozen sugar cane stalks to sell. Many of them have nothing on their persons except a single article made of coarse cotton cloth, manufactured in the country, and colored blue. They neither wear any thing upon their heads or feet.

Many of these poor blind creatures and their way from one part of the city to the other by feeling along the walls of the houses. The old are frequently seen leading children stone Speaker Banks will be found to contradict the blind, and infancy on the other hand, guiding the tottering footsteps of old age. After breakfist I stepped out in most of my he tel, and before I had time to refle t upon the change in being in this city instead of Atlanta, estack to alming yet all is in an in beamand says. each driver with one hand hold of his donker's tail and the other laying on the blows with whip, and all in uprourious talk, screaming the nerits of their animals, some in Italian, some in French, and others in broken English. Finding that the ears of these animals were getting pretty near my own head, and having had some experience when I landed at the wharf, I ran my eye over the growd and having selected the best looking one, throwing out both elbows to rlear myself, I made a bound and was astride of him in a moment. At this the whole squad opened to the light and left and gave me a passage.

Although this is a muisance, yet it affords a great deal of amusement. Nine out of ten strangers who visit Egypt know nothing about the donkey boys, and during the age of greenness, as the boys themselves undoubtedly think, the novice is in a pitiable state of awkwardness, which affords a great deal of merriment to those who have purchased the experience. For instance, T. Fitzgerald Snobkins, Esq., a noble English gentleman right from London, thinks he will take noiet turn on the grand square to show off his well fixted clothes, right boors on which is a fine polish, and his new beaver. Well, he just gets off the door steps, when he is surrounded by a instrument, which can be appled to the wices at troop of dankers with their owners, while others from far and near, seeing the crowd, are torging forward their little animals, each is trying to keys understand it and those in front advance heir great good natured faces right into his own, while those in the rear force theirs over and rest on his shoulders. The former tread on his toes and the lutter endanger his heels. At this juncture the face of the Englishman ancills with rage and vexation. He turns first to the right, then him at all these points. Seeing no way to escape. he then, after standing some moments in an agony of perplexity, makes up his mind to take one ne the cheapest way to get rid of them. The boys, still having their eyes intent on their rictim, at this moment consider half the nattle won, tim, at this moment consider half the natife won, and the remaining part is to be fought for the plunder. The din therefore time to the highest in place of Geo. P. Thompson, removed. We pitch and Johnny becomes desperate. Like the pitch and Johnny becomes desperate. Like the take. This is the most interesting point to the outsider, who heartily enjoys the sport. After a which amounts to about as a nuch as some old. struggle of this kind some five or ten minutes, depending entirely upon the decision of character of the afflicted one, he makes a selection and the curtain of this real and most amusing drama drops. Sometimes, driven to a state of frenzy. he breaks through the crowd and starts off with rapid strides to avoid the donkey boys importunities; but a dozen or more follow him wherever he goes, and continually haunt him until be finally gets back to his hotel. If he goes into a shop | they wait until he comes out; if he dodges through a building and comes out on another street, they whip around and get there as soon as he does; and if he hires a bont to evade them, they learn his place of landing and when he gets ashore again one mile from where he started, he is quite arprised to see the same identical grinning faces.

I was here I hardly left the hotel without riding The charge for a hoy with a donkey for a whole day is only twenty-five cents, and therefore it is cheaper to ride than walk. The boys are very good natured and most of them are intelligent enough for guides, so that it saves the necessity of employing any Cicerone. .

I never shall forget my first ride. Scated on lows: my little donkey which was not much larger than a good sired sheep, my legs almost hitting the ground, the little Arab driver dressed in a blue cotton shirt and a cap, first giving him a twist in the tail and then a blow on the rump, off we started down the street under full headway. Looking back over my shoulder I saw that the driver was just behind running at an angle of forty-five degrees, first cutting his donkey on one Franks. The site of the place is on a sandy plain receiving another blow on the right rump he would sheer to the left. All this was under great speed and owing to the sudden turns of so small body under me, I was obliged to cling hold of the saidle with both hands. Thus I went, Gilpin like, through the whole of the grand square, expecting every moment to be thrown off, and at submitted. the same time feeling that if I fell and broke my limbs, I could not help indulging in the heartiest with fearful loss of life, is reported by telegrap's, of their houses. Also many of the banks, stores laugh I over had. When we first started we came very near running over a half dozen naked chil dren at play; another blow, and we took a fresh turn, upsetting an old woman's establishment of oranges; again another, and off the little fellow angled, breaking through a company of Egyptian soldiers; another whack, and again we tacked and I came very near being knocked off by comgreat variety of business notices, real estate occasionally may be seen a Christian dressed in ing in contact with one of the loads of a came our own style, either an Italian, French, Greek, just passing in a caravan; still another, and this time he dodged into the sidewalk, scattering men, women and children on all sides. At last being a little provoked, but so full of mirth, I could hardly keep a straight countenance, I made out to stop the donkey by getting his great head against a post, when I told his master he must go slower, at least until we got out of the city. To this he readily assented, and I quietly made my way towards Pompay's Pillar and the Baths of Cleopairs. ¥.

This general raise is rather an ominous beginning for the new Common Council. If they continue as they have commenced, the Tax Payers will have a snug bill to pay again next winter.

This part of the Milwaukee & Horicon Railroad extension is attracting a good deal of atten-tion in the vicinity of its probable location, and many people are auxious to learn the best and many people are discovered for such road, but the great question is not where the road will be located, but when shall it be made, for when it is constructed it must pass somewhere within a reusonable distance of all the most important places between those two points. But the Company who build the road have some interest in selectwho than the found may sinke the refer in accepting the bear and cheapest, and most; feasible and nearest toute; and therefore should earnine all the routes before determining on any one. There is one thing certain, that a very good route for a Railroad between these two points can be found, and the best is to take nearly an air line, varying only from two to four miles—passing from Berlin to Pine River and to Ceder Lake, thence through the South-west part of Waupacca County near Junction Lake, Parfley-ville and Rutal Village, to Badger House and Plover, to Stevens Point. A more destrable route cannot be found, and it passes through an excellent farming country, with plenty of wood and water—two very important items for Railroad conveniences. DEATH OF A DISTINGUISHED HINDOO,-AMOD dies, and to American bouses in the India trade, as "the great American banian," or banier.

This eminent Hindoo was possessed of immense wealth, for the most part hereditary—though his property acquired in trade was vast, eren for a leading banian. In social life be was of the old régime, and his great festival in 1852 in compliment to his American clients, as well as to celebrate the marriage of his grandson, was distinguished by a splendor and profusion sufficient to inspire his guests with the idea of sluost tabulous riches. On that occasion the little bridegroom literally blazed in jewels to the value of notices than ten lace of rupees, ($505,000.)

The Babit's public contributions to the Doorgha The Babn's public contributions to the Doorgha Pooga-the annual religious festival in honor of the Goddess Doorgha—were munificent in the extreme; and his private entertainments were on a scale of symptuous prodigality unsurpassed since the golden viceroyalty of Warren Hastings. Once, on his birthday, he paid himself the com-pliment of releasing all the occupants of the deb-tors' prison. He is said to have kept thiry lacs of rupses, ($1,500,000,) circulating in his ity business.

Politically the Babh was progressive and of the "Young Bengal" party, and in religion, though —like all Hindoo gentlemen of old family—jealous of his caste, he was far removed from fanaticism. His loss will be seriously felt by Americans in Calcutta.-N. Y. Tribune.

The incilities for the manafacture of the celebrated Milwookee Bries are supple, at the Pier, and the work can be prescented at much less expense than in the city.

EVARTS' PATENT SHINGLE MILL

EVARTS & BUTLER, PROPRIETORS & MANUFACTURFIES, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.
THE SMOOTHNESS OF THE WORK WHICH GIVES
this Mill its superiority, is preduced by making the cut in the direction of the fibre of the wood.
The case wit h which wood is worked in that direction gives it speed of execution, and the fearbility of the shize gie width wise relieves the saw, so that it may be ground thin on its edge, so as to cut away but little of the wood.
The singles now made with this mill sell is this marked inventy five cents per thousand higher than any other saved shingles.
